GLACIARIUM COLLECTION
DESIGNED BY FREDRIKSON STALLARD

TABLE OF CONTENT

- 5 GLACIARIUM LIGHTING COMPONENTS
- 7 GLACIARIUM CHANDELIERS
- 9 ATELIER SWAROVSKI HOME

Inspired by the raw power of crystal, designers Fredrikson Stallard have collaborated with Swarovski to produce a chandelier range along with a series of crystal chandelier components. This comes in addition to Fredrikson Stallard's celebrated range of centerpieces, bowls and candlesticks, developed for Atelier Swarovski Home. Glaciarium emphatically celebrates the nature of the material while the pieces demonstrate that Swarovski's blend of heritage and technical innovation contains a potential for design that chimes perfectly with contemporary sensibilities.

Patrik Fredrikson and Ian Stallard began working together in 1995 and are recognized today as leading exponents of avant-garde design. Past collaborations with Swarovski include Eden, an immersive space evocative of a fantastical, archaic forest at Kristallwelten in Austria; Prologue, a huge disk of crystals set in a heavy steel structure that, when lit, takes on the appearance of a full moon, brought down to earth; and the Armory and Space Flower jewelry collections for Atelier Swarovski.

GLACIARIUM CHANDELIERS

The Glaciarium collection is inspired by Fredrikson Stallard's knowledge of Swarovski's complex crystal production techniques and the behavior of the material in its raw state. Fredrikson Stallard realized that the eccentric forms of their bespoke components would best be set off in a rigorously geometrical matrix: two of the chandeliers are strictly linear, the other perfectly circular. This sense of contrast is heightened by the use of industrial steel to form the housing for the lights. The mounting is designed so that, as in a traditional chandelier, the crystal components can face different ways, and also shiver and shimmer with a passing breeze or movement, bringing life to the play of refraction. Superline and Voltaire could be used as accent pieces or to light an irregular modern space while Helios, whose title refers to the sun, is a monumental ring of light.
